Outcomes Health Information Solutions

New Vice President of Applications Development Joins Outcomes Team

Alpharetta, GA, (April 13, 2010) -- Outcomes Health Information Solutions, LLC, a leading healthcare data auditing and analytics firm, announced the appointment of Kirk Elder as the new Vice President of Applications Development. Mr. Elder is responsible for planning, coordinating, and supervising initiatives related to the design, development, and implementation of Outcomes' information systems and software applications. Jim Egan, CIO, said "Kirk brings years of experience to Outcomes in data management, architecture, and complex systems design and development – He's a great asset to the team."

Prior to joining Outcomes, Mr. Elder was part of the executive management team at MedQuist, a medical transcription software technology and services company. He has over nine years of healthcare technology experience which includes information solutions architecture development, data management, and complex systems design and development. Mr. Edler holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Physics from Georgia Institute of Technology.
