Outcomes Health Information Solutions Hires New CEO and Looks to the Future

New executive leaders, product launches, and office expansions set the stage for Outcomes' future

Charlottesville, VA (May 3, 2010) – Outcomes Health Information Solutions, LLC recently announced its expansion plans which include the appointment of Gary Velasquez as Chief Executive Officer. “Gary came to our attention because he shares our client-centric philosophy and our passion for improving healthcare data, for his strong execution skills, and for his track record in driving shareholder value,” said Wanda Kochhar, Founder and Chairperson, “We’ve spent more than a decade developing and fine-tuning our platform, our technology, and our resources. With Gary’s experience and proven ability to lead top performing teams, we believe he is the right person to take Outcomes to that next stage of growth.”

Mr. Velasquez has more than 30 years of executive management experience in healthcare services. Prior to Outcomes, he was CEO of Synarc, a specialty Contract Research Organization. He was also a senior executive at Health Net, Inc. where he was responsible for more than 10 operating subsidiaries in addition to directing their Information Systems and New Venture divisions. He has also held operational, financial and technology roles with Managed Health Network, Equicor and PacifiCare Health Systems.

“We believe that we have chosen an excellent leader who shares our vision and values,” said Anil Kochhar, Co-Founder & Vice Chairperson, “He has already made a big impact.” Mr. Velasquez has begun building a top tier executive leadership team, naming Jim Egan, formerly with Ingenix, as the new CIO at Outcomes. “Jim is a strong leader with senior level technology experience that we need as we continue to grow. We are excited to have Jim as part of the team to oversee Outcomes’ technology infrastructure to better serve our expanding client base,” said Mr. Velasquez.

Mr. Velasquez plans to continue to invest in people and technology to build a top-quality platform for additional growth stating, “Quality in everything we do is the key to our future.” His vision includes a unique approach to building a superset of patient-centric data which he believes will far exceed the performance of existing healthcare data sources now in place.

This new direction at Outcomes is already being put into place through a series of initiatives including operational center expansions, new product launches, and the strengthening of the executive leadership team. These changes help to bolster Outcomes’ core while facilitating future growth as one of the nation’s leading data auditing and analytics companies.
